

The Wisconsin School of Business, in partnership with the world’s leading business schools in Asia, Europe and Latin America, is proud to offer the innovative graduate-level Global Real Estate Master (GREM) program.

Give your career a competitive edge with an intensive semester abroad learning the principles of advanced real estate finance and economics, from the core concepts of feasibility analysis and urban economics to applied skills in real estate development and real estate portfolio management.

The Wisconsin School of Business is a recognized leader in real estate education and research; its programs are top-ranked in the U.S. by U.S. News & World Report.

TWO DEGREES

The GREM degree is a two-phase masters-level program, starting with graduate-level studies in business (MBA, Economics, Finance for example) at a leading institution, followed by a capstone semester in real estate at Wisconsin. Enrollment is open to current students and recent graduates (within 5 years).

The capstone semester at the Wisconsin School of Business includes a complete, multidisciplinary real estate curriculum taught by renowned academics and industry professionals drawing on over 100 years of Wisconsin history in real estate education. At the end of the semester, you will earn a master’s degree in global real estate from the Wisconsin School of Business.
